INSPIRING EQUITY THROUGH EDUCATION

The Stephen Lawrence Day Foundation exists to inspire a more equitable and inclusive society by creating opportunities for young people across the UK. Through education, career development, and community engagement, we honour Stephen's legacy and empower young people to thrive and become agents of change.

Becoming an Ambassador School means joining a growing national network committed to keeping Stephen's story alive, not only through remembrance, but through action, opportunity, and meaningful change.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO BE AN AMBASSADOR SCHOOL?

Ambassador Schools are more than just a title; they're partners in shaping the future of the young people they serve. As an SLDF Ambassador School, you will:

- Champion equity - promote inclusive, anti-racist education by embedding SLDF values into your culture and curriculum.
- Lead by example - pilot SLDF resources and demonstrate how Stephen's story can inspire learning and action.
- Inspire others - share your work with other schools and encourage them to join the movement.
- Amplify young voices - showcase your pupils' creativity, reflections, and leadership.
- Collaborate with us - join consultations, focus groups, and celebrate Stephen Lawrence Day with purpose and energy each April.
